

Astrid Blystad is professor at the Department of Public Health and Primary Health Care and at the Centre for International Health, University of Bergen. She has a background in nursing and social anthropology, and has been engaged in reproductive health related research in East Africa since the late 1980s, with a prime focus on fertility/infertility and HIV/AIDS. She is involved in research and competence building projects with numerous African institutions of higher education.

phone: +47-55586161
mobile: +47-48185096
e-mail: astrid.blystad@isf.uib.no

Karen Marie Moland is associate professor at the Department of Nursing at Bergen University College and a senior research associate at the Centre for International Health, University of Bergen. She has a background in nursing and political science and has worked with issues related to reproductive health and health systems, particularly maternal health and HIV/AIDS in Ethiopia and Tanzania. She is involved in research and training collaboration with institutions in eastern Africa.

Their latest publication is:

Moland Karen Marie and Blystad Astrid (2009): "Counting on mother's love: The global politics of prevention of mother-to-child transmission of HIV in eastern Africa. In Anthropology and Public Health: Bridging differences in culture and society: pp 447-479, eds Marcia Inhorn and Robert Hahn, Oxford University Press, New York

phone: +47-55587146
mobile: +47-92628226
e-mail: karen.moland@hib.no